

Compromise Reached in Recall Suit; Special Election Will Be Called For Mayor's Office in July

Actions Against Cummings and Miltimore To Be Dropped, But Clerk Will Certify As To Fathers' Petition.

SIGN ALL PAPERS TODAY

FATE OF THE RECALL PETITIONS WILL REST ON THE SINGLE ELECTION OF SUCCESSOR TO MAYOR JAMES FATHERS—WHO WILL BE CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED HIMSELF AND WILL BE OPPOSED BY JOHN C. NICHOLS.

At some date between June 1 and July 22d, the citizens of Janesville will have the opportunity of voting for a successor to James A. Fathers, present mayor. This special election will be called by the council when notified by City Clerk Hammarlund, that the petition demanding the recall of the present mayor, filed by the recall element some months ago, is sufficient.

Meanwhile the court actions and petitions filed against Councilman Roy M. Cummings and Chauncy Miltimore, on the application of the recall element before the circuit court will be dismissed, probably on Monday next, and all interest will center on the election of mayor, the other two petitions for their recall being withdrawn.

This is a compromise that has practically been reached by the attorneys representing the two elements, M. O. Mount, Thos. S. Nolan, Otto Oestreich, and William H. Dougherty, attorneys for Mayor Fathers, Councilmen Cummings, and Miltimore, and James Clancy of Stoughton and John L. Fisher employed by the recall element.

The matter has been pending for some ten days past, and while the Gazette learned of the proposed plan some days ago, it was not published owing to the possibility of some other plan being developed. The matter has been pending for some ten days past, and while the Gazette learned of the proposed plan some days ago, it was not published owing to the possibility of some other plan being developed.

Another important item which it is understood induced the parties to agree to this decision was the fact that the present discordant condition of affairs that has existed since the recall petitions were first filed, has injured the city, and it was thought best to bring about a harmonious condition by centering the action on one official, Mayor Fathers being the one thus selected.

By the agreement the recall attorneys agree to withdraw the actions against Roy M. Cummings and Chauncy Miltimore, now pending in the circuit court, and to continue the action brought against James A. Fathers, in which Charles Sykes is petitioner, until June 1. At that date City Clerk Hammarlund will certify to the common council, that the petition demanding the recall of Mayor James A. Fathers is sufficient and the council will immediately call for a special election to be held not later than July 22d.

According to the law this special election must be called within fifty days of the certifying of the petition, and July 22d was placed as the date, although it may be called earlier if deemed convenient. The law also places Mayor Fathers in nomination to succeed himself without any primary which he would have to compete with and whoever will be his opponent, can be placed on the ticket by direct nomination by filing a sufficient number of signatures, or at a primary election should more than one candidate appear.

Mayor Fathers will be a candidate to succeed himself and it is understood that former Mayor John C. Nichols will be his opponent unless some other candidate should appear. The matter will be a primary held previous to the regular election.

This centers the fight as between Fathers and Nichols, practically, and it promises to be a spirited campaign. It is understood that according to the terms of the recall element, this election will settle for good and all the present political differences, and no more recall petitions will be filed by either side.

At the spring election of 1914 one of the members of the present council, Chauncy Miltimore, term expires, and a successor will be voted on at that time. The final papers in the terms of agreement will be signed today and will be effective as soon as the withdrawal of the suits now pending in court is made, probably on Monday next.

BARONESS SUICIDES TO AVOID BEGGING

Lives for Generation in Wealthy Quarter of Paris Without Her Identity Being Known.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Paris, May 3.—Baroness de Howen, bereft of family and friends, spent her last soul for bread and butter—J. committed suicide. She left a note for the police saying:

"One has no right to die at eighty when one has no kin, no friends, and when one can no longer live."

Inquiries disclosed that the old lady had lived for a generation in a little room on the ground floor, with a window looking out on the avenue Wagner, in the wealthy Boule quarter of Paris. Through the always open casement the neighbors were accustomed to see her busy in the morning, and in the afternoon she would take the little money left and alloted to her weekly expenses, calculating that it would last a life time. But she lived some years beyond her expectations, and the neighbors were all agreed that she had been "somebody," although no one knew her title. What puzzled passersby was to see on a chair near the window a wreath of artificial flowers. She had kept them all the years for her death.

MINIMUM WAGE BILL PRESENTED REVISED

Provides That Industrial Commission Shall Have Power to Investigate the Wages Paid—No Arguments.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., May 3.—A re-written minimum wage bill was presented to the assembly committee on public welfare yesterday afternoon by Professor John A. Commons of the University of Wisconsin. The new bill provides that the industrial commission shall have power to investigate the wages paid in any establishment and may enter an order fixing the minimum wage to be paid to women after the investigation has been made. There were no further arguments on the bill. The committee took no action but it seems probable from the content of the members of the committee that a substitute will be recommended for passage.

The original bill provided that in case employees complained that the wages paid to females in any establishment were not a living wage, then the employer, two persons, and the industrial commission one person to make an investigation and attempt to reach a wage scale. In case of difference the commission upon the evidence could fix the minimum wage. This part of the bill has been completely wiped out by the substitute offered. The change is made because it was believed that in such establishments where employees complained that a reasonable living wage was not being paid there would not be a sufficient organization to secure the appointment of a commission. The facts regarding the wages and grievances of their fellow members. The entire power of investigation now rests with the industrial commission. Under the substitute bill which has been framed. The commission will proceed along the lines now laid out in the present industrial commission act in fixing a wage. Penalty for disobedience of the commission is the same as imposed in the commission law.

The substitute provides for a sum not exceeding $20,000 to carry out the purpose of the bill. The industrial commission shall make rules and regulations whereby any female or minor unable to earn a living wage determined shall be granted a license to work for a wage which shall be determined by the industrial commission. Every person employing three or more females or minors in required to register with the industrial commission giving full information of the wages paid.

NEW YORK INVADED BY SUFFRAGE FORCES

Suffragettes From All Over Country Gather to Join in Monster Procession.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, May 3.—The streets of New York were after today with the fluttering yellow of woman suffrage. Under the white, color-banded women from all over country poured into the city today to reinforce many thousands more pledged to march up Fifth Avenue this afternoon in protest against the proposed disfranchisement of women. The marchers, augmented by 2,000 male sympathizers brave enough to dare the taunts of unbelievers and the anti-suffrage weather conditions inspired the marchers.

While platoons of police began to take positions along Fifth Avenue to protect the parade from possible disorderly demonstrations, the marchers recruited from every walk of life began this forenoon to gather in Washington Square and in nearby cross streets.

WILL DETERMINE REWARD FOR FINDER OF CHILD

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Opelousas, La., May 3.—Just what reward or token of esteem will be given to the woman who found the body of a kidnapped child, will be determined at a final meeting of the business men of Opelousas on Monday. When the Dunbar boy was stolen from his home on August 23 of last year, his business men raised $6,000 reward to be paid to the person returning the boy to his parents. The first of April the offer of reward was withdrawn and the boy returned to his parents. As it has been found impossible to reimburse the entire $6,000, the meeting today will decide whether Deputy Sheriff Day is to be given such portion of the money as will be returned to the fund or whether he will be presented with an automobile or some other substantial present.

SPANISH COMMERCE HAS RAPID GROWTH

Imports of Cotton From United States Are Doubled—Government Securities Increase in Value.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madrid, May 3.—The last ten years in Spain show an amazing degree of commercial and industrial progress. The record of the decade ago was looked upon as a dying nation, reads like the comparative statistics of a boom town in the American West, and there is awake in Spain today a spirit of hope and enterprise that is confidently believed, be the solution of all the country's material and political problems.

The doubled imports of cotton from the United States, the rapid output of iron ores, the prosperity of railways and the rise in Spanish Government bonds from 85 to 93, are indications of this progress, but it is from agriculture that the largest additions to Spanish wealth are made.

Ten years ago 12,500,000 acres were planted in cereals; today the total is 17,500,000 acres. The wheat yield in 1904 was $7,500,000 bushels, last season it was close to 150,000,000 bushels. The yearly consumption of wheat, including that used for sowing, is about 175,000,000 bushels. The larger acreage this season will further reduce the wheat and flour imports. The expectations are that another five years will turn Spain into a wheat exporting country.

Fresh districts of barren land are brought under the plow each year. The new Ebro irrigation canal in Catalonia and the canals under construction in Aragon will turn into farms and gardens upward of 1,000,000 acres of desert country, and in the central province there are 600,000 acres which irrigation and railroad extension would transform into wheat fields.

SOCIALIST LEADERS OF BELGIUM ACHIEVE GREAT DISTINCTION

Emile Vandervelde and Eduard Anseele Come into prominence as Result of Political Strike.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Brussels, May 3.—Two men have come to the forefront of public attention as a result of the recent political strike in Belgium each adding to his popularity and his record as a successful Socialist leader. They are men of widely divergent characteristics. Emile Vandervelde, the gifted and brilliant intellectual, and Eduard Anseele, the fiery, enthusiastic, and even in his particular field, contributed materially to the measurable progress made in the past month toward manhood suffrage in Belgium. Vandervelde, who has led the Socialists of the country since the death of Jean Volders, is approaching his fiftieth birthday. In his youth he studied law, but his interest in social questions prevented his practicing. He is possessed of high literary gifts, a wide knowledge of the world, and an intellect, lightly-athletic nose, and penetrating eyes. Vandervelde's face once seen is rarely forgotten. He was elected to the Chamber of Deputies in 1894 and rapidly distinguished himself by his eloquent and intellectual superiority. As a speaker he is remarkable for his distinct utterance, the preciseness and clearness of his thought, and his masterly use of words. He is a magnificent debater, never losing his temper, and keeping Vandervelde's reasons for belonging to the Socialist party are rather those of the head than the heart. His convictions are based on actual studies, and always has been a determined opponent of the recent general strike, which he believes will only delay the triumph of the cause of Socialism. But the master of the party having pronounced in favor of the strike, Vandervelde bowed to the decision and co-operated in the common work to the best of his ability.

The other Socialist leader, Eduard Anseele, founder of the "Vooruit" of Ghent, presents a striking contrast in every way to Vandervelde. Of open and engaging countenance, possessed of a warm and vibrant voice, Anseele charms all who come in contact with him. He is an excellent speaker, using a wealth of imagery to convey his meaning, which he further enforces with vigorous gestures. Possessing no personal means, he lives on his salary as a member of the parliament, an income of $416, which he gets as a director of the "Vooruit." He contributes nearly half this small revenue to the Socialist cause.

Emile Vandervelde and Eduard Anseele is a working man and the son of a working man. He has known the world's rough hand. His father was a shoemaker, but wanting earnestly to give his son some education, he labored with extreme self-sacrifice to this end. Young Anseele was employed in turn by an architect, a seedman, and a cloth merchant. One evening he entered a Socialist meeting and was so profoundly impressed by the picture of the misery of the people drawn by the speaker that he at once enrolled himself in the ranks of the "International." The next day, having confidence in the Socialist views to his employer, he was summarily dismissed. Not daring to show himself to his father, he ran away to Antwerp, whence he worked his way to London, during six months he wandered about the British capital, sleeping under the bridges. He tried to get a list, but was rejected on account of his lack of inches.

Eventually the young man returned to Belgium where he became a printer. In association with other workers he organized a co-operative bakery. This was the beginning of the "Vooruit," now famous throughout Belgium. "Vooruit" is a Flemish word meaning "forward." It was the rallying cry of the organization, which at the end of its first year counted only 500 members, now has over 10,000, and it owns twelve large buildings valued at nearly $100,000.

BLAME INCENDIARY FOR SERIOUS FIRE AT BRADFORD, ENG.

Suffragettes for a Time Suspected of Blaze Which Caused Loss of Half Million.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Bradford, Eng., May 3.—Extensive sheds belonging to the Midland Railway containing much freight burned down here last night causing a loss of $500,000.

Nineteen loaded freight cars and quantities of dry goods and carpets were consumed. Mysterious fires have broken out in these sheds on three successive Friday nights.

The militant suffragettes were suspected of arson but there was no proof of this. The latest fire was evidently incendiary for the firemen discovered that it had been started simultaneously in several parts of the building.

The firemen were able to save the adjoining building only by the utmost efforts.

Earlier in the night a fire had been started in some cars loaded with straw in another yard apparently by accident. The fire spread to a scene of operation of the incendiary.

HOUSE TARIFF FIGHT COMES TO A CLIMAX

Underwood Champions "Schedule K" on Behalf of President Western Members Make Protests.

Washington, May 3.—"Schedule K" the much discussed, always disputed wool tariff upon which the democrats maintain the republicans stumbled in their fall from power last fall and over which their own party is divided, brought the tariff fight in the house today to a climax.

Majority leader Underwood championed the schedule with all his force on behalf of the ways and means committee and the president. He did it in a masterly manner. He declared the president was as much entitled to consideration in the making of the tariff as any other citizen, and he lauded him for his general approval of the measure, as it came originally from the committee.

The open secret that the ways and means committee had first favored a fifteen per cent tax on raw wool was freely discussed in the debate and that the final vote of the democratic members in committee was not unanimous was openly declared and unchallenged.

Many of the democrats freed from the duties of the caucus were outspoken in their opposition to the schedule. The protesting majority members coming from Ohio, Texas, Indiana and other western states, charged against it in the caucus, but who agreed to stand by the majority were silent in today's discussion which promised to continue tonight.

Representative Payne offered as a substitute the new wool schedule the republican wool bill he introduced in the last congress. Representative Murdock and Martin also had amendments. The schedule was read under an agreement for three and a half hours. The debate, Mr. Underwood urged that purely political speeches be avoided.

Representative Payne vigorously explained his substitute and defended the republican tariff. He declared that those who advocated duty on wool first succeeded in committee, but free wool followed suggestions of the head of the party, the president.

There was a heated and highly dishonorable. There is not a gentleman on the republican side who has not listened to suggestions from a republican president.

Representative Harrison of New York denounced the schedule as prepared by the committee.

"After this bill is enacted into a law," he said, "when a man buys an $8 or $10 suit of clothes he will find there is some wool in it and the first time he goes out in the rain it won't stiffen up like a stove pipe. Free raw wool means cheaper clothing to the American consumer."

Petition for repeal of the tariff on the wool growing industry was made by Representative Fordney of Michigan.

TINY ENGLISH GIRL STEALS BREAKFAST BACON OF DUCHESS

Amusing Story Told of Russian Grand Duchess' Adventure at Swiss Hotel—Troubles of an American.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, May 3.—Grand Duke Andreas, first cousin of the Emperor of Russia, on his way home from a visit to Switzerland, stopped at a hotel of how the Grand Duchess was caught by her favorite breakfast dish at a hotel because of the liking of a little English girl for broiled bacon.

The Grand Ducal party had a suite of rooms in a well known hotel at St. Moritz. An American lady, accompanied by a nine-year-old English girl, arrived at the hotel only to find that there was no room for them. The Grand Duke noticed their predicament and very courteously offered a spare room in his suite. This room was next to the bedroom occupied by the Grand Duchess. In the corridor outside a sentinel was on duty, so when every morning the English girl heard of the trouble, and she recalled that every morning her charge had asked permission to play in the corridor. She watched the girl, who snatched the bacon and concealed it under her coat while the sentry was making his military march up the corridor.

When the sentry returned, the girl explained that she liked bacon, but said she had always been careful to leave some fat for the Duchess. Her American guardian was overcome with embarrassment, but the sentry, who was a party to the matter as a huge joke, forgave her by taking the little girl's casting.

California in Trouble.

Gustav A. Fudickar of Los Angeles, California, has arrived in London after escaping from the clutches of the law officers of the German Emperor. As the result of his experience in Berlin, Mr. Fudickar will make a protest to the State Department at Washington, who must a German law which has caused a number of American tourists to get into difficulties with the authorities.

The California traveler was negotiating the purchase of some diamonds for his wife in Berlin. He was told that he could have the stones he wanted for 11,000 marks (2,750), and an expert assured him that the stones were of the highest quality. The owner of the stones that if he decided to take them, he would have to wait the receipt of further funds from home. In the meantime he looked at the diamonds again, and he was advised that a poorer quality had been substituted.

The next morning the jeweler's assistant called at Mr. Fudickar's hotel and asked for a deposit on the gems. Mr. Fudickar, however, declined to take them. The assistant then reappeared with an attachment against Mr. Fudickar's baggage. This, however, was not levied, and the American traveler was advised to attach his cash deposit in a local bank.

At the American consulate Mr. Fudickar was informed that his only remedy was a suit in the civil courts. He decided to do this, and the Californian decided to brush the dust of Berlin from his feet, but before leaving he learned that many other Americans have suffered similar treatments in Berlin some time ago. He was told that the law permits a merchant to force payment on his swear that a customer has promised to take certain goods, and the victim has no redress except a suit to recover the goods, for he is not given an opportunity to answer the accusation.

CALIFORNIA SENATE PASSES WEBB BILL

ANTI-ALIEN LAND HOLDING MEASURE ALMOST UNANIMOUSLY ENDORSED.

BRYAN'S WORK FAILS

Assembly Expected to Pass Companion Measure at Once Which Will Be Signed by Governor Johnson After Slight Delay.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Sacramento, May 3.—The administration anti-alien and holding bill drawn by the attorney General Webb passed the senate early this morning by a vote 36 to 2, after nearly ten hours' debate. The only negative votes were cast by Senators Cartwright, democrat, and Wright, republican. The principal provisions of the bill are as follows:

1. Aliens eligible to citizenship may acquire and hold land to same extent as citizens.
2. All other aliens are limited to the specific rights conferred upon them by the existing treaty between the United States and the nations of which such aliens are citizens or subjects. In the case of the Japanese the bill prohibits ownership of farming or agricultural lands while permitting them to own residences and factories, manufacturing and shops.
3. Leases of agricultural land by such aliens are permitted for a period not exceeding three years. There is a question as to whether renewals would be allowed.
4. Aliens ineligible to citizenship cannot inherit land. Upon the death of an alien land holder his property shall be sold by the probate court and the proceeds distributed to his heirs.
5. The state specifically reserves its sovereign right to enact any and all laws in future with respect to the acquisition of real property by aliens.
6. Present holdings of ineligible aliens are not affected except that they cannot be bequeathed or sold to other aliens classified among those not eligible to citizenship.

Other Provisions.

4. Aliens ineligible to citizenship cannot inherit land. Upon the death of an alien land holder his property shall be sold by the probate court and the proceeds distributed to his heirs.

5. The state specifically reserves its sovereign right to enact any and all laws in future with respect to the acquisition of real property by aliens.

6. Present holdings of ineligible aliens are not affected except that they cannot be bequeathed or sold to other aliens classified among those not eligible to citizenship.

Will Pass.

A companion measure identical in phraseology probably will pass the assembly tomorrow and will be signed by Governor Johnson after a reasonable delay. It is expected that there will be no further delay in the passage of the bill.

In the closing hours of the debate partnership was lost sight of. Democrats and progressives voted together. The reason for this was a demand of the people of California. Their only difference in the end was over the question of whether the bill was drastic enough.

The utility of Secretary Bryan's mission to Europe was the vote of his mission. Nine of the democrats voted against the bill, which he brought from President Wilson while not a single progressive voted against it. The reason for this was a demand of the people of California. Their only difference in the end was over the question of whether the bill was drastic enough.

He has agreed to delay signing the bill until opportunity shall be given for hearing whatever protests President Wilson may desire to make. In the governor's own words this delay will cover a "reasonable time" probably not more than ten days certainly not more than thirty.

Although the act is designed to exclude all aliens ineligible to citizenship it is drawn in conformity with treaty obligations and guarantees to the United States, and it is not a violation of the phrase "ineligible to citizenship" objected to by Japan.

With this program at hand the assembly today picked up today the work of the senate and began final consideration of the Bloodgood bill which is identical with the Webb draft of the anti-alien bill passed early today by the senate.

Honest, now, did anyone think Ty Cobb ready to stay a holdout? Still, it was a pretty good bluff.

The Britishers think they have an athlete greater than Jim Thorpe, credited Olympic champion. They are going to bring him along this summer when Cambridge and Oxford have a friendly track meet with Harvard and Yale. The gentleman who plans to wrestle the laurels from the brow of the redskin is the syndicate owner, Cambridge. He can run and jump with equal brilliancy, and combines these abilities in the hurdles.

Because Del Gainer of the Detroit Tigers has a sensitive nature, Manager Hargis Jennings kept him on first base when Ty Cobb got back into the game. He had intended putting Sam Crawford on first and sending Ty to right field, but thought it would bust Del up to put him in the job. He took recruit Fingie High from center field. High is young and not so sensitive as Del.

Denmark has sent a nifty little knocker over to this country in the person of Miss Dagny Peterson, a physical instructor. She says American physical training is the worst she has seen in the old or the new world, saying that the gymnasiums here are poorly ventilated, small, dirty, ill-equipped, with their disciplinary effect on the unruly American children about their only virtue.

Talk about initiative—Ty Cobb had hardly ceased to be the last major league holdout when Art Grogg forgot his grievances and signed with the Montreal club. Grogg is good for a .300 average any time, and would still be in the major leagues, where he was for some years, if he hadn't been too fat, lazy and indifferent even for first base.

MILTON HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATS WHITEWATER

First Game in Interscholastic League Goes to Milton by Score of 5 to 4.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Milton, May 3.—The Interscholastic League season opened here Friday when Milton high school defeated their old baseball rivals of the league pennant last year, taking it from Whitewater. This game was hard fought from start to finish, Milton holding the lead to the end after the first inning. The locals began by getting on first and second, and immediately worked the double-steal which helped them to two runs off the reel. Whitewater came right back and tied the score. Then Milton pushed across a third, then a fourth, and shut out Whitewater for six innings and scoring twice more to put the game on ice; in the eighth, however, a bone-head play by Rupp, which should have resulted in a double play, permitted the visitors to safely on first and second, from where they scored on a hit, an error, and a fielder's choice. Mullen tightened up and fanned two of the three men who faced him in the ninth and won the game. Both Mullen for Milton and Dorr for Whitewater pitched gilt-edged ball, each securing ten strikeouts. Young Kraus, a freshman at Milton, made a swell throw from the field and cut off a runner at the plate in the eighth. W. G. Whitte umpired the game, which was played in last time—1 hour and 30 minutes. The score by innings:
Milton 2 1 0 1 0 1 0—5 5 3
Whitewater 2 0 0 0 0 2 0—4 6 3
Batteries: For Milton—Mullen and Adder; for Whitewater—Dorr and Robinson.

SOME DON'TS FOR AUTOISTS.

Don't impose unnecessary hardships upon your tires. They have enough to bear at best. Don't run in car tracks or come in contact with obstructions that can, by little care, be avoided.
Don't be persuaded to experiment with new and untried devices of tire construction. Let the other fellow do the trying out. It is better economy.
Don't run a foot on a flat tire if it can be avoided. You will damage or possibly destroy the casing and the tube will be entirely ruined in a short distance.
Don't neglect the oiling system of your car. The more friction there is in the machinery the greater the burden that is put upon the tire equipment.
Don't drive at top speed the greater part of the time, or if you do, don't expect as much life from your tires as you would otherwise obtain. You won't get it.
Don't try to use tires which do not fit the rim perfectly. This is important. Rim-cutting is often due to this very thing.
Don't take corners at high speed. A moment's consideration will show the effect produced as the car skirts around and the force the tires must withstand.

FRESHMAN BALL TEAM WINS FROM SOPHOMORES

Two High School Teams Stage Interesting Contest at Driving Park Friday Afternoon.

In a close played baseball game yesterday afternoon at the Driving Park, the high school Freshman team defeated the Sophomores by a score of 7 to 2. The battle was a royal one, and it was more of a pitching duel between Harley Badger of the Sophomores and Roy Ryan of the Freshman nine. The game was marked by many brilliant feature plays Ryan's pitching in the pinches being very noticeable. Badger was going along very well for a time, but in the pinches, he was not very effective. The Sophomores secured one run in the first inning, throwing a scare into the yearling men. At once, the Freshmen got to Badger for several hits and two tallies. They secured three more runs in the third inning, and then two more again in the sixth inning. The Sophomores started a batting rally in the ninth, but they only succeeded in crossing two men over home plate, making the final score 7 to 2.

The lineup and score by innings is as follows:
Freshmen—Spohn, c.; S. Ryan, p.; Richards, s. s.; Drake, 1b.; Marshall, 2b.; Font, 3b.; Jones, 1st; School, r. f.; Kakosky, c. f.
Sophomores—Fuchs, c.; Badger, p.; Mooney, s. s.; Bennett, 1b.; Beard, 2b.; P. Brown, 3b.; Bidwell, 1st; E. Brown, r. f.; Drew, c. f.
Freshmen: 7 2 0 0 0 0 0—7 10 4

Fifty Years Ago

Fifty years ago today records the saddest and most unfortunate event for the Union forces in the great Civil war. Allusion is made to the second day's battle of Chancellorsville, where Gen. Joe Hooker in command, met his Waterloo, and sacrificed the lives of thousands. Gen. Grant had selected "Fighting Joe" Hooker as the one thoroughly competent general for the occasion. That he utterly failed was demonstrated then and there. Gen. Carl Schurz, in a recent account of the three days' fight at Chancellorsville, says he (Hooker) unquestionably lost his head, or was under the influence of liquor. Schurz further says that Hooker seemed bewildered and would not listen to his subordinate generals, who were able to see and understand the situation. It was there that Gen. Stonewall Jackson, against whose strong and well conducted forces Hooker was conducting, was killed by his own men, that sent our army from probable destruction and that would inevitably have prolonged the war.

May 2, 1862, the second day's fight at Chancellorsville was a defeat for the Union forces, the enormity of which may never be known. Our young soldiers were enlisted, and cut down in many commands almost to a man. Our dead and wounded there were left on the field to be consumed by the burning pine woods.

Reference is made to the Third Wisconsin Regiment (Col. Ruger) which was decimated more than one-half. The entire color guard of this regiment was either killed or mortally wounded. Only three commissioned officers of the entire regiment escaped death. Had it not been possible to promptly fill our ranks with recruits immediately after the campaign, allied to the great battle of Gettysburg, might have been the last of us and the North invaded.

Fifty years ago today, Corporal William A. Kimberley (brother to E. O. Kimberley) one of the color guard of the Third Wisconsin Regiment was killed, and his body burned in the dense pine forests of Chancellorsville, Va., together with all comprising the same.

Members of the Forum Literary society entertained their lady friends last evening at their annual banquet in the Caledonian rooms. A bountiful four-course dinner was served under the direction of Mrs. Boverman, and the twenty couples present enjoyed a pleasant evening. At the close of the dinner, a short program was given, which proved to be a delightful entertainment. The president, Frederick Cummings, opened the program with some humorous stories, and then introduced Charles Noyes, who gave the Forum history, touching on the success of the Forum in past years, and of its future plans. Stanley Judd was next called upon for a toast to the ladies, and he responded with an interesting speech. The response was given by Marjorie Vankirk. Her speech was written in rhyme, and she had something pleasant to say of each member of the society. Following her remarks the chaperones were asked to give their remarks, and John Harlow responded with his view of the banquet. The Forum program was next given by Roy Cannon, and the future of some of the members were real surprises to them. Harry Siegel gave several selections on the piano and he was encored many times. The final number on the program was a silent oration given by the president, Fred Cummings. He pictured a court room scene without saying a word. Following the program an hour was given over to dancing.

WATHER FORECAST.
In this vicinity the weather will continue cloudy and unsettled with showers tonight or Sunday. It will be cooler tonight, with moderate south winds, changing to west.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
Many of us who live a thousand miles inland from the sea shore, and who do the most of our traveling, either for business or pleasure, over land, can hardly appreciate the fact that along the coast the great highway for traffic and pleasure are the waterways, which nature has so generously provided.

While the ocean and the gulf, with their vast expanse of water, provide a roadway for the great liners and freighters, which ply between the two continents, and by the aid of the cables at the bottom of the sea, and the wireless messages overhead, keep the nations in close touch with each other, many of the towns and cities along the coast are connected by inland waterways, where small craft are as numerous as automobiles in the north, and equally popular.

It is possible to go from New York to Palm Beach today on what is known as the "inside route," and many of the small pleasure boats, which cruise in southern waters, take advantage of this inland waterway.
Many of these boats are too small to venture outside, for the sea is never quiet, and the ground swell, produced by a gentle breeze, creates a commotion, while a twenty mile gale, which is liable to spring up at any time, rocks the great liners like a cradle.

The inland of Manhattan has but two terminal railway stations—the New York and Pennsylvania Central—but these, because of their magnitude and grandeur, attract world-wide attention.

What the city of Greater New York lacks, however, in railway terminals, is made up in liberal measure by water terminals, which attract but little attention, because they are so numerous and because of the great freight of water craft which they accommodate.

From the Battery, at the lower end of the island, north, along the water front for miles, every foot of space is occupied by docks and great warehouses, where vessels of every description receive and discharge their cargoes.

But little freight is delivered by rail on Manhattan island, and the coaling stations, which supply the city with fuel, are located on Staten island or the Jersey shore. This means that a fleet of tugs is in constant service in the harbor, doing the work that the switch-engine performs in the inland cities.

The needs of the city are largely supplied by some water routes, and nine-tenths of the population depends upon the ferries and pleasure craft, which ply in all directions, for what they get out of travel in the way of recreation.

The great landlocked harbor presents a daily panorama, and is always a revelation to the uninitiated, for here the ships of all nations ride at anchors, or rest quietly in their slips, after a long voyage. Through the narrow channel, which connects the harbor with the broad highway, boats are coming and going every hour of the night and day, and many of the stories of thrilling experience encountered are never written.

The liner "New York," came in the other day after a very tempestuous voyage. Captain McClellan, who had been with the company for more than thirty years, said that in all his experience he had never encountered such a storm. It lasted for three days and the great ship was headed into a wind which traveled at hurricane speed.

During the worst of it, a great wave loomed up above the bow of the ship and as it broke, the captain, who was on the bridge, grasped a stanchion and held on for life. When the wave passed he looked back at the vast expanse of water, with not a sign of the ship in sight, and he said, "I thought for a moment, will she ever come up."
But gradually she came to the surface and was ready for the next encounter. Every movable thing was washed away including the lifeboats.

One of the coastwise steamers sailed from New York for Jacksonville, early in March with two hundred and fifty cabin passengers. The second day out she encountered a hurricane and, for the balance of the trip the dining saloon was deserted, and yet in spite of these occasional discomforts ocean travel is safer by far than land.

The waterways of the Gulf and the Atlantic are a Godsend to the southern states, for their products of cotton and lumber, and much of their fruit, would never find a market, if dependent upon the railroads. The freight on a car of fruit from Florida to New York is two hundred and ten dollars, which is prohibitive, when the crop is as abundant as it is this year.

The rates on cotton and lumber may be a little less, but fifty cars of either, is simply ballast for the ordinary steamer, and the water route gets the freight. New York is not only the principal port of entry for our adopted citizenship, but the greatest market in the land as well, for the ships of all nations, laden with all kinds of products, sail into the New York harbor and discharge their cargoes.

The west, with its thriving towns and cities, and its vast expanse of rapidly developing territory, is great in many ways, and the enthusiastic people never weary of chanting its praises. New factories and increased population stimulate to renewed energy, until the spirit of enterprise becomes contagious, and every man becomes a booster, as he should.

The towns and cities of the west are individual units, and many of them reach their growth before they pass the half-century mark. Others continue to expand and take on new life, because of the untiring disposition possessed for new development. The booster movement intelligently carried on, always produces results, as it is bound to in Janesville, if every man puts his shoulder to the wheel.

New York is great, not because she aspires to greatness, but because it is thrust upon her, and the people accept it as a common heritage. To them the great city represents the universe, and they are satisfied.

She is the great money center of the country, and every city in the land pays tribute, by contributing to her financial resources. Industries come unsolicited, and her population increases at the rate of one thousand a day, and the great city swallows them up without disturbing digestion.
The Statue of Liberty, in the harbor, welcomes the people from all nations, and the products of every land mark up the cargoes which come in with every tide and stock the great warehouses which line the waterfront.

The city is great in wealth and craft, in philanthropy and tragedy. It does things regardless of cost or expense, and Tammany, never more in evidence than today, assumes responsibility, accepts the cursing, and goes on with the work.
The budget for this year calls for one hundred and ninety-three million dollars, an increase of one hundred million in ten years. Mayor Gaynor holds the title and occupies the chair,
but the fifteen thousand policemen,
and the city officials and employees, recognize Murphy as the man behind the throne.

The city is neither a kindergarten nor a Sunday school, yet it is clean and orderly and houses the most contented lot of people on the continent.
A large majority of them have never been west of Jersey City, and they wouldn't exchange the crowded tenement for the best cottage and garden in the land.

Nature, the golden sunset, and the simple life, has no fascination when compared to the "great white way" and its ever-changing panorama, and not only the poor, but people with comfortable incomes, never tire of chanting the praises of "gay New York."

While the unprejudiced westerner admires the great metropolis, and is frank to admit that the city has no rival in this country, the prejudiced New Yorker in his ignorance, imagines that the great west is a howling wilderness.

This sort of ignorance, which prevails to greater or less extent throughout the east, has had much to do with keeping the two sections of the country divorced from each other, but the progress of the west, and its unbounded enthusiasm, is forcing its way through the shell of the conservative east, and mutual relations are recognized today as never before.

"No east, no west, no north, no south, but one common country," is the popular slogan. American citizenship, whether acquired by birth or adoption, is a choice heritage.

SCRIPTURE.
Job 36:12-11. I will show thee that I have yet to speak on God's behalf.

I will fetch my knowledge from afar,
and will ascribe righteousness to my Maker.

For truly my words shall not be false; he that is perfect in knowledge is with thee.
Behold, God is mighty, and despiseth not any; he is mighty in strength and wisdom.
He preserveth not the life of the wicked; but giveth right to the poor.
He withdraweth not his eyes from the righteous; but with kings are they on the throne; yea, he doth establish them forever, and they are exalted.

And if they be found in fetters, and beholden in cords of affliction;
Then he sheweth them their work,
and their transgressions they have exceeded.
He openeth also their ear to discipline, and commandeth that they return from iniquity.
If they obey and serve him, they shall spend their days in prosperity, and their years in pleasures.

Would you consider a car up-to-date without ALL of these features?

A number of different makers, since the latest Premier came out, have added some of these various latest and more approved features to the line they are now offering, but what car besides Premier embodies all these features even today? None.

Are you interested in a car in which any of these features are missing? Even one or two obsolete features stamp a car out of date—behind the times.

Premier has delivered to date three times the number of cars delivered in the same period last year. The secret of this Premier prosperity is not only because Premier is so highly regarded as a car, but because of the completeness of Premier's year. The six-cylinder Premier of today is backed by seven years' experience in the building of successful six-cylinder cars.

ATTORNEY GENERAL HELD IT LEGAL TO BUILD OVER RIVER

JANESVILLE CASE TAKEN BEFORE THE RAILROAD COMMISSION FOR ACTION.

MADE DECISION TODAY

Mercy Question of Obstruction of River Bed That is Subject to Ruling by Board.

At the time of the disastrous fire a month ago, which wiped out of existence the buildings on the Milwaukee street bridge, a petition was circulated, finding many signers, asking the state railroad commission to take up the matter of prohibiting the rebuilding of the structures destroyed. The petition was filed with the commission at Madison and they in turn asked Attorney General Owen for an opinion as to their rights in the matter.

In his opinion, filed with the commission this morning, Mr. Owen holds that the commission can not prohibit the rebuilding of the structures destroyed and simply have the right to pass on the obstruction of navigation of the river.

When informed of the decision of Mr. Owen, several persons interested in the property rights of the city stated that as yet no plans had been made for rebuilding and it was intimating that they were willing to see what requirements as to construction of buildings would be made by the council.

The following is the ruling of Attorney General Owen on the question:

Madison, Wisconsin, May 3, 1913.

Attorney General Owen submitted an opinion to the Railroad Commission today relative to the petition of Janesville business men concerning the right to rebuild the burned structures on the Milwaukee street bridge.

The petition did not allege a violation of the law for obstructing navigation, saying the building would be a menace only by fire or flood.

The attorney general holds that the state protects the right to build over a river unless such building causes unlawful obstruction to navigation. This law is now in force, says the opinion, and is not a part of the water code which the supreme court called unconstitutional. It is the duty of the railroad commission to report to the governor any "unlawful obstructions to navigation," by the terms of a law passed in 1911.

Wrote the opinion, the question of the commission to previous opinions of the supreme court as to what constitutes violations of the law relative to obstructions, and explains it is in the commission's discretion to determine the existence of violations, and that it is that body's duty to be guided by the facts before submitting the case to the governor.

AGREE UPON METHOD TO FINANCE OILING

Property To Be Charged Five Cents Per Front Foot—Must Be Paid For Before October 1.

Procedure to be followed in oiling the streets of the city and the method of defraying the expense of the same has been agreed upon by the Council. By resolution the Board of Public Works will be directed to prepare a list of the first day of October, 1913, if not paid before that time the amount charged against the property will be entered on the tax roll, and the City Clerk will be instructed to cause the same to be included in the tax roll for the year 1913, to be subsequently collected as a special tax.

The connection of the heating coils in the tank car of oil with a portable heater, completed yesterday afternoon, and the oil heated for sprinkling, but none was run into the distributor as it was too late in the day to start sprinkling. If no more rain falls this afternoon a beginning will be made.

ELECTED DIRECTORS FOR THE CHATAUQUA

Meeting Held Last Evening to Talk Over Plans for Coming Summer Gathering.

Janesville is to have a Chatauqua, probably the last week in July and the first week in August, during the coming summer. This was the decision reached last evening at an interesting meeting of the directors of the affair in the library room of the Gazette. It was talked of having the proposed Chatauqua located on what is known as Dunn's pasture, on Washington street, which is easily accessible from all parts of the city.

The following list of directors were also named and these gentlemen will meet in the library of the Gazette on Wednesday afternoon next to elect officers and plan for the coming summer convocation of the city in the interest of the Chatauqua. The agreement has already been signed with the American Lincoln Chatauqua association, and the program of the class attractions have been signed up. The local association agrees to sell five hundred season tickets at one dollar and a half and should have no difficulty in doing so.

DECIDE TO EXTEND TIME FOR ENTERING THE CORN CONTEST

Additional Five Days Allowed to Accommodate Boys Who Have Been Hindered by Rush of Spring Work.

Owing to the fact that there have been several requests received at the Gazette office for an extension of time in which to enter the corn raising contest because the rush of spring work has hindered a number of boys from securing and filing blanks and buying seed corn, the Gazette has decided to extend the time until next Saturday, May 10. This will allow ample time for any who have been hindered to make the necessary arrangements and will bring the closing date at about the time when planting should be started.

Nearly one hundred boys have their names on the list, but this is far from the number which the Gazette would like to see entered. It is thought that at least seventy-five more entries can be secured within the next week.

Reference has already been made in the Gazette to the Racine corn contest which is being conducted under the auspices of the county agricultural school. The rules and regulations of both the Racine and Rock county contests are very similar, although each was started independently of the other. The aims and purposes to be accomplished are also similar. An opening paragraph from one of the Racine circulars will be of interest.

The reasons for the contest are manifold. In the first place the acre yield of corn in Racine county is on the average under fifty bushels, and it is desired to demonstrate that improved methods of cultivation and the use of pure bred seed this year can be materially increased. We believe too, that the "stay on the farm" movement is being fostered by the fact that the "back to the farm" movement can ever become, and there is no surer way of welding the boys and girls of the farms to the country than by showing them the efforts that can be made when applied to the soil. Another reason for this contest is that Racine county farmers may have a source of supply for pure bred seed corn.

MRS. MARY A. WILBUR SUMMONED BY DEATH

Passed Away Early This Morning— Came To Janesville Sixty Years Ago—Leaves Son and Sister.

Mrs. Mary A. Wilbur, who came to Janesville sixty or more years ago, died at 8:15 o'clock this morning, at her home, 622 Prospect Avenue. She had been sick with a complication of diseases for the last few weeks, and at her advanced age she could not resist their attack. Mrs. Wilbur was born in County Kerry, Ireland, March 26, 1835, and came to Janesville at the age of fifteen years. On their arrival, the family of which Mrs. Wilbur was a member, set up a home at what is now 155 Hickory Street. The old home is still standing. Surviving her are a son, George, who has departed, and a daughter, Mrs. Wilson, and a sister, Mrs. Beatrice O'Connor of Omaha. Her husband, Calvin Wilbur, has been dead several years. Funeral services will be held at St. Mary's church at 8:45 o'clock Monday morning.

CARDINALS TO OPEN SEASON AGAINST BELOIT

The Janesville Cardinals open their season tomorrow at Beloit when they clash with the crack North End team of the Line City. This is the Janesville's first contest and all members are anxious to start the season with a victory.

The North Ends are one of the strongest teams in Beloit and reports indicate that their lineup is considerably strengthened from that of last year. The Cardinals, however, are the twirling for the Janesville and should score a victory. Wilson, last year's catcher, is again back in the lineup and with this battery the Cardinals promise to give any team in southern Wisconsin a hard grab. A good schedule of games are being arranged by Manager Enright and it is expected that the team will play in Milwaukee.

Creating Large Demand for a Popular Tobacco

American Tobacco Company To Present All Smokers With Pipes.

D. J. Sullivan, formerly of Milwaukee and recently of New York, is again in the Wisconsin market representing the American Tobacco company's smoking products and featuring Tuxedo tobacco in a new and modern method of creating further demand for this already famous high grade brand of smoking tobacco.

After trying out the new method in the east, Mr. Sullivan says that it has proved a great success with the dealers, as well as promoting the sale of Tuxedo. He is supplying every live agent up-to-date dealer with the new Sweet Phoenix Togo Cob Pipes to be given with the purchase of every 10 cent tin of Tuxedo to both the new and old friends of this brand.

There is no reason for the wonderful and continued growth of Tuxedo tobacco because it is made from the choicest leaf of its kind and by its process of manufacture the bite, has been completely eliminated, making it doubly desirable for pipe or cigarette smokers. Mr. Sullivan says this is substantiated by the testimonials volunteered by men of note and world-wide fame and they all agree that a pipe of Tuxedo is a source of comfort in the family circle.

The pipe of peace, as we all know, when properly filled with Tuxedo, is a forerunner of peace, of mind and good nature, as well as comfort in the family circle.

MAKING INSPECTION OF CARRIER SERVICE

Postal Department Officials Here in Consequence Of Petition For Additional Carriers.

Janesville's mail carrier service is at the present time undergoing careful inspection as to efficiency and adequacy in consequence of the petition of Postmaster Charles Valentine for the addition of two more employees to the carrier force. Postal Inspector E. M. Bates of Watertown has been in the city taking observations throughout the week, and Inspector F. G. Huffcutt is expected to arrive here for a similar purpose next Tuesday. The inspectors will determine whether the present force is of sufficient size to provide satisfactory service, and if its efficiency can be increased by re-mapping the routes. The time is unfavorable for an inspection of this kind according to Postmaster Valentine, who says that the daily volume of mail has fallen to nearly half of what it was in the previous six months, and the showing that the city will make as to the necessity of a larger force of carriers will not be as strong as it should be. Conformance with the new eight hour law for postal employees is one of the factors that makes additional carriers necessary.

There is no reason, says Postmaster Valentine, for a reopening of the post office on Sunday as far as Janesville is concerned, and very little demand for a reversion to the old practice of Sunday mail delivery. The carriers appear to be the moving force behind the present agitation for reopening. The local office sorts out all the mail that arrives Saturday night before Sunday morning, and the office is really no necessity calling for the opening of the postoffice on Sunday.

NEXT SERIAL FULL OF VITAL INTEREST

Daughter of David Kerr Will be Published in the Gazette Within A Short Time.

The Gazette has made arrangements for the serial story, "The Daughter of David Kerr" by Harry King Tootie and it will be published in a few days.

The story has to do with the exposure of Boss Rule. It tells how a political czar, grown rich through the graft made possible by his power, is determined by his own daughter for whom he is seeking a position in high society and how a young editor who is fighting the battle of the people wins the love of the daughter and eventually defeats the boss.

This is a true and thrilling tale of current American life and its problems and will be interesting from start to finish.

CHURCHES OF CITY WILL AID HOSPITAL

Collections to be Taken in Both Catholic and Protestant Churches Tomorrow.

Collections will be taken in all the churches of the city tomorrow for the purpose of increasing the fund of the Mercy hospital work. The new building having ceased because of lack of funds to complete it, Mercy hospital is the only institution of its kind in Janesville. Its present accommodations are far from adequate and the new building when completed will be a serious reflection upon the city if a failure of its people to render aid prevents the completion of the structure. It is expected that generous donations will be made. Announcement of the collections was made in the churches a week ago.

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By
D. W. WATT

In eighteen hundred and seventy five there was a man with the Burr Robbins show by the name of Miles Orton, whom many of Janesville's older citizens will remember as he made his home here for a couple of years. Miles Orton was a feature with the Burr Robbins show for two years and was a bare back rider. Mr. Orton, while one of the best riders in the business differed from Charlie Fish or James Robinson who were the champions in their day, for he did what was called a carrying act. He had a son Claude whom he carried on his head around the ring. He was a high salaried man and after two years with the Burr Robbins show he left there and joined one of the larger shows where I think he remained about two years longer and by this time he had saved quite a snug sum of money and the next fall he was in the spring of '80 and he had launched out a small wagon show of his own, known as Miles Orton's All Feature Circus and Menagerie.

His principal clown for his first year in the business was Al G. Fields. Fields was then a young man and this was one of his first years in the business, but as many of you know the Al G. Fields Minstrels were famous not only in this country, but all over Europe as one of the finest in the world.

In those days with the wagon shows at times the drives were long and the roads bad and it was difficult to carry out enough over the road to light the show in the smaller towns where it was impossible to buy oil. I recollect once at Sioux Falls, South Dakota, they ran out of oil and it was impossible to buy it in the town so they took six-inch boards, bored holes in them and the evening performance was given by candle light.

But before they had time to do all this Al G. Fields the clown, got hold of an old silk hat, put a hole in the top, lit a candle and put in the hole and came out before the audience and said that if he could get the protection of the chief of police that they already had plenty of light and the performance could go on. This made a hit with the audience and the clown was able to keep them satisfied till more candles arrived so that they could at least see part of the performance. At that time Ed Tracey of this city was the chief of police and he and Al G. Fields from that time on became fast friends and it was for many years that Mr. Tracey, even times during the season would get a letter from him even after he had got to be famous in the minstrel business. Mr. Tracey shortly after left Sioux Falls and went to Chicago and joined the Pinkerton forces where he remained some three or four years and during this time he made the acquaintance of many show men, whom he met at different times. Among them was Montgomery Queen, at that time owner and manager of one of the finest shows on the road. Although Mr. Orton is more than three score years and ten, he is still in the business and somewhere in the western country this season running a small but high class show.

Of all places to study human nature I think that the ticket wagon of a circus is the one. Here you meet all classes of people in all walks of life and it's here that all the bills are paid so that you meet hundreds of them every day in a business way. For an hour there in the afternoon and the same time in the evening your work has to be done in a hurry, as you have to get hundreds of people into the show in an hour. Milwaukee was one of the hardest towns to sell tickets in I ever saw. This is on account of the large German population and they are naturally slow and deliberate about their business, and invariably if the head of the family got into the crowd to buy tickets he had neglected to count noses and did not know whether he wanted seven or twelve tickets. St. Louis was the next in line and this was due to the same cause. There would be many days that nearly if not quite, six thousand tickets would have to be passed out of the ticket office in one hour.

One season we had fifty-six Indians with the show. All these were government subjects and came from their reservations in the far west. They had a sleeper of their own with the show and a colored porter to take care of them. One afternoon between the afternoon and evening show the Indians thought they had a grievance with the porter and they commenced to raise a row and the porter was not long in finding out that there was trouble brewing. He was out on the railroad track keeping an eye on them, but finally twenty of them made a dash for him and the colored boy started down the track with a good lead between him and the Indians, but for a colored boy to outrun an Indian was among the impossibilities.

They had not gone far when the colored boy looked around and saw one of the Indians aiming a revolver at him and commenced firing on them when they were not more than fifty or sixty feet away. Along in the early sixties Uncle Sam had taught the Indians to look for smoke, especially if it was made by powder. The Indians all turned and ran just as fast for cover in their sleepers as they had been running after the colored boy, but the darky never looked back. He went down the railroad track a flying and this was one porter that we never heard from after that.

While showing in the western country, many times we would show near signs of approval on their countenances, and as soon as the afternoon show was closed they would quietly walk outside the tent and sit down on the grass and talk it over between themselves and the minute the show would open for the evening they were right back into the show again and would never leave the grounds at night until the last wagon had left for the train.

I once heard Billie Burke say that smiles on an Indian's face were as scarce as tears on a frog. But they were invariably good patrons for the circus and whenever we showed near a reservation we could always count on them being there, for they would not even leave one to keep the camp fire alive.

The Indians were paid every Saturday, each one getting his own money while a few of the older ones gave their money to the interpreter, as a rule the younger ones cared for their own and spent it as they went along many of them being broke before salary day came around again.

During the engagement of the Ringling show at the Coliseum in Chicago, for fifteen days, they took more money than they ever took in fifteen days in their history. Buffalo Bill's show in Madison Square Garden is playing to enormous business; the Gollmar Brothers will close an engagement in Milwaukee at the Amphitheatre there tonight, where they have given twelve performances to big business, and will take to tents Monday. The Barnum show is in Connecticut showing to big business, the Ringlings were in Washington D. C. last Monday and Tuesday and will be in Baltimore, Maryland, next week Monday and Tuesday; the Wallace Haggbeck show is in Indiana playing to big business and although damaged many thousand dollars by the flood, the newspapers say that the show will be bigger, brighter and better than ever before, so it certainly takes some flood put a circus and menagerie out of business.

As for Janesville, we are likely to get both the Ringling and the Buffalo Bill shows here some time during the summer.

Comfort Plus —

This superb car is, first of all, a thing of absolute comfort, as easy to ride in as the finest upholstery, long easy springs and proper balance can make it.

More than that, it is reliable, durable,—undaunted by the most abominable going—these are vital to your safety.

An Unapproached Reliability Record

For three years this car of comfort has won the stiffest of all Try-out Tours—the Classic Chicago Reliability Run—1910, 1911, 1912.

The last was a tour around Lake Michigan which led for miles through a rocky wilderness. This was covered with a perfect score—not a penalty!

Then, too, the Moline won the trophy for its class in the Glidden Tour of 1910 which was run through the swamps of the south and the gumbo of the west, with less total penalties than any car of any class.

Such is the record this sturdy car bears—a wonderful reliability record.

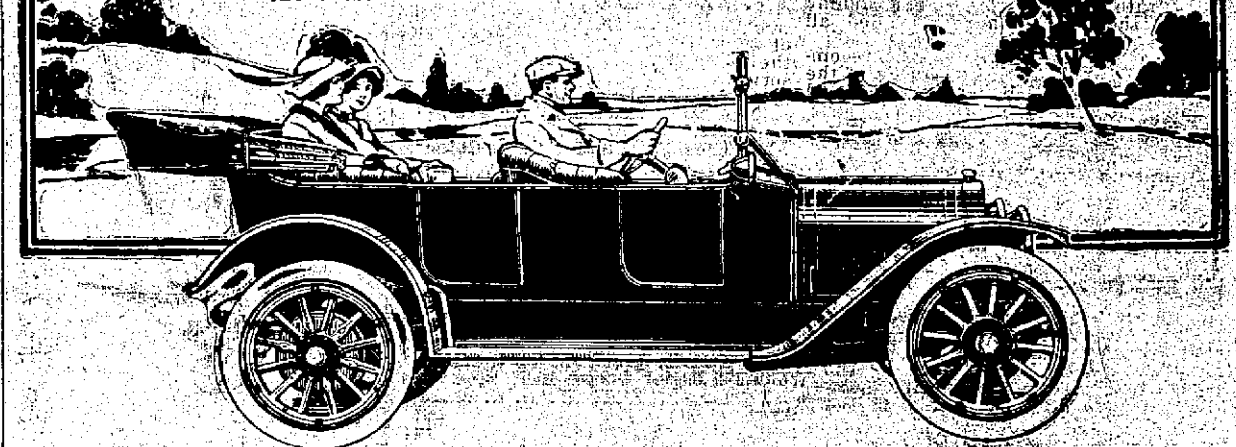

In the hands of the individual owners it holds the world's record for perfect reliability. We ask for an opportunity to demonstrate to you.

From the mechanic's point of view THIS CAR IS PERFECT

A Revelation at the Price

CADILLAC features and Cadillac refinement are a revelation in a five-passenger Touring Car at $1975.

Prove this statement for yourself. Examine other cars. Pick out the ones that are as big, as well finished, that have the mechanical features of the Cadillac. They sell for more than $1975. The Cadillac is lifted out of the low-priced class by its roominess, beauty, structural and mechanical excellence. It is out of the high-priced class because of its price.

The Cadillac has size and room—many cars are big without being roomy. It has selective sliding gear transmission, the best in the world.

It has powerful long stroke motor. It has an electric lighting and starting system that is 100% efficient.

The Cadillac is refined—by that we mean that more attention has been paid to things little in themselves, but contributing materially to the owner's comfort and satisfaction than in any other car at the price.

"The Sweetest Smoke in the World" is Tuxedo in a "Corn Cob" pipe de luxe — the Togo pipe with a genuine Weichsel stem.

Remember the old corn cob pipe we used to smoke, how sweet and cool it was always? No other pipe has ever equalled the cob in its own sterling qualities—and the Togo is a corn cob pipe de luxe.

The Togo looks better—is made better—will last longer and gives the same sweet smoke as the old-time cob. The stem of Weichsel wood contains fragrant aromatic oils which are released when the smoke enters the stem, making a smoke which cannot be excelled in delicacy and sweetness.

The Greatest Men in America Endorse Tuxedo Tobacco

The live, virile men who make this country what it is, recognize the relaxation from nervous and mental strain, the restfulness—that comes from smoking Tuxedo tobacco. A host of famous Americans say frankly and emphatically that Tuxedo is the one tobacco containing every desirable element and not one that is undesirable.

Tuxedo strengthens your will to do. The soothing quality of a pipeful of this mild, delicious, aromatic tobacco restores your poise and revives your going power by enabling you to rest.

You can smoke Tuxedo! No matter how often you have tried to smoke a pipe and failed, there is comfort and satisfaction in pipe smoking for you if you fill your pipe with Tuxedo.

Tuxedo has made pipe smoking possible to thousands of men. The "Tuxedo process" of treating the finest, mildest leaves of the highest grade Burley tobacco, causes Tuxedo to burn slowly with delicious flavor and the most enjoyable aroma. Tuxedo cannot bite, sting or irritate the mouth, nose or throat.

Hundreds of well-known doctors, orators, actors, lawyers, singers, lecturers, ministers and other public speakers testify that smoking Tuxedo gives them the keenest pleasure and exercises a good influence on the throat.

Tuxedo has many imitators. None of them has yet discovered the "Tuxedo process." Tuxedo remains unique and unrivaled.

MEN WHO HAVE MADE A STUDY OF GRAIN SEEDS KNOW THAT IT TAKES YEARS TO ACCLIMATE SEED TO WISCONSIN CONDITIONS. THEY ADMIT THAT THE BEST SEED FOR THE AVERAGE WISCONSIN FARMER'S PURPOSE IS THAT GROWN IN THIS STATE. CAREFUL SELECTION RATHER THAN NEW SEED IS THE ADVICE THEY OFFER. FOR ROCK COUNTY FARMERS NO SEED CAN EQUAL THAT RAISED IN THIS COUNTY. BE SURE YOU ARE GETTING THE BEST HERE AND YOU MAY REST ASSURED THAT THERE IS NO BETTER TO BE SECURED.

In the past it has been difficult to find local men with seed for sale. Not that they were not here, but that there was no means by which they could be located. To overcome this the Gazette has opened in its Classified Page a

A Farm Seed Classified Column

Here can be found a list of local dealers and farmers who have seed for sale. To men who have seed for sale it offers a market of the 3000 farm homes that the Gazette reaches each day. To the many who wish to buy seed it offers a ready index of the dealers in his kind of grain. Both can use it with results.

THE RATE FOR ADVERTISEMENTS in these classified columns is 12 cents a word each insertion. No order for less than 25 cents. The charge rate is 1 cent per word. Address can be given care of Gazette if so desired.

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

The Woman Who Won't

DON'T you think that the woman who won't is a most exasperating individual?" asked Phoebe, as she joined the group on the piazza. "I mean," she explained, "one of those women who are obstructionists."

"Obstructionists sounds political," objected Madge. "Have you been studying up on suffrage?"

"No, this is just plain obstinacy," replied Phoebe. "In the form of my cousin Elizabeth."

"She's been a semi-invalid for some time," went on Phoebe. "And she's really brought it on herself by dieting. She's got a lot of crazy notions that one kind of food will injure her stomach, and another affect her liver and so on, until now she's got to the point where she eats sparingly anything. She was perfectly well when she took up with these fads and now she's an invalid. But you can't make her see she's brought it on herself, or get her to change her diet. She just won't. When I say, 'But look where you are by doing these things! Why not try another course, just to see if it will not help you?' But no, she won't."

"It's the same, when I try to get her to go any where. If she'd only go out a little and see people and have a good time, she'd begin once more to take some interest in life. But no, she won't. And it's that way about everything that would help her. She just won't. There she sits at home stubborn as a mule, and cutting out of her life all that is pleasant and enjoyable and really helpful. And that she is on the wrong track is proved by the fact that she is sick all the time and has nothing to show for her troubles. What can you do with a person like that?"

The little group was unable to suggest a remedy.

"The worst of it is," went on Phoebe, "she got herself into this condition through the very best of intentions. When she began doing all these things, she thought she was doing the very best possible for herself. But what is exasperating is that when she sees the bog into which they have led her, she won't face about and try a new course. But she won't."

"I suppose, she hates to admit she has made a mistake," ventured one.

"I don't know what is her reason," said Phoebe, sadly. "But it seems so pitiful for her to sit in darkness, so to speak, when all the bright, beautiful world awaits, for her to walk into and enjoy."

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

by Mrs. E. J. Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a woman of fifty-two years and had partly gray and partly black hair. I wanted to have all gray hair and I took nuxomine and put it on my hair and that made some of it red. Now would you please tell me how I could make it all gray, for I now have three different colors of hair, red, black and gray.

ANSWERS:—You can continue the nuxomine treatment until the hair is all white, but it will coarsen the hair and you have to keep up the treatment all the time, or it will show black at the roots. Lead juice will also bleach it and I think it is less harmful than peroxide. Use soda or borax when washing the hair and in the final rinse water put a few drops of bluing.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of eighteen. (1) Am I too young to have a beau if my parents do not object? (2) I have been going with a young man for six months. One night, when he called, before going home he asked me for a French kiss and I told him I would not, and he got cross. This is the second time I took him back. Before he left he said we would be together again within a week. I said I would never go with him again. When I first met this young man I thought he was very nice and thought there was no one like him, but later I found out what he was. At first I thought sugar wouldn't melt in his mouth. (3) Mother thinks he is a very nice young man and thinks it's my fault because he is cross but I know more about him than she does. If I would only tell her some things he said to me she wouldn't think he was so nice.

(1) No. (2) If he wants to kiss you, he should find out if you love him and are willing to marry him. If you are engaged he has the right to kiss you; not otherwise. (3) Tell your mother the truth, my dear. It will be best for both of you. If you know he is not the right sort, be firm this time, and do not make up with him again.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of eighteen. I am going with a young man of seventeen. Is it out of place to go with a boy younger than yourself? (2) How late should we sit up when keeping steady company? (3) I have brown eyes and brown hair. What color of dress should I wear?

SUNSHINE:—(1) It is not particularly wrong but it is not very dignified, my dear. You are old enough to go with a man, not a "kid." (2) If he has to go to work early in the morning, send him home early, so he will be fit to do good work. (3) Brown, tan, red, pink.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Which finger and on which hand is an engagement ring to be worn, also wedding ring? (2) Is Mr. Wilson, president, a Catholic? (3) What is the difference between a duke and an earl? (4) Can you tell me how to make an egg shampoo for my hair? (5) The first thing we look for when we get our mail is your Heart and Home problems.

BLUE-EYED COW GIRL:—(1) The third finger of the left hand is used for both rings. (2) No. (3) A duke is next in rank to a prince. An earl has the rank of a count, and is less than a duke. (4) Boil up a couple of eggs and rub them on the hair and scalp. Let dry, then rinse out several times in lukewarm (not hot) water. (5) Thank you, my dear.

Domestic Science DEPARTMENT

CONDUCTED BY Mrs. Alice Mitchell Kirk

What has become of the rosy-cheeked children we used to see? Is it because they are crowded and kept too closely confined in the homes and in school rooms, or is it lack of the right building food? Possibly, some of both.

There are many families with children living in cities, having their homes in apartments and no yards for them to play in. Mothers who cannot afford to nurse their children of having them play on the streets; consequently they are indoors with games and books more than they should be.

If they are within walking distance of school that helps a great deal. Then ventilation and sanitary conditions are receiving proper attention both in schools and homes, so again that is of great gain to the children.

But food! Most mothers say to me: "My child will not eat whole wheat bread or eggs or drink milk." He does not like this, or that or the other thing. Only yesterday an intelligent woman was asking me what to do with her nine-year-old boy who would eat only the things he liked and very few of these. Upon inquiry she said he was "well and strong," taken as taken, it developed that he was pale and nervous.

That surely does not make healthy (and that is what we mean by handsome) children.

Suppose your child was ill and a physician was sent for. What would a mother think of him if he opened his medicine case and said to the little child: "What medicines would you like? You may have whatever kind you choose?"

We know that no sane doctor would do such a thing, but that is just what mothers and fathers are and have been doing for years with foods and then wonder why their children are pale, nervous, irritable and take cold easily.

For healthy children a mother should begin to eat right food herself at least six months before the child is born. Necessary building up is furnished at this period of the mother's food, hence it should be pure and of good quality. The teeth and bones of the child get good start when the mother is careful to eat bone food such as cow's milk, eggs, especially yolks, peas, beans, lentils (dried), whole wheat bread and outer grains, such as oatmeal, unpeeled barley and unpolished rice.

We have said plain cooking. That means knowing the right foods to buy, the best ways of cooking to retain all the nourishment, served in a variety of ways and attractively and then seeing that the child eats it. There will be no danger but that he will like it, so say nothing about that part of it.

I should certainly be willing to do as well by our children in giving them the right food to eat to build bone, muscle, blood and make rosy cheeks, as the farmer is to give just the right food to his prize poultry and cattle. Children properly fed need not get sick. Their bodies will be well fed and able to resist all so-called children's diseases.

Fruit, natural unpolished rice and certified or pasteurized milk, whole wheat bread or muffins and a limited amount of butter, about one-half an ounce. When a cereal is eaten, do not give them the acid fruits such as grape fruit and oranges. Give old-fashioned oatmeal, well cooked unpeeled barley, whole wheat and corn meal.

Add raisins, currants, dates and figs to muffins or cereal occasionally, as this is a good natural sweet which children need. A child's needs will guide him with such food and no danger of over-eating.

Soups made of a combination of four or five vegetables and greens, or any of the thick cream soups, potato, baked or boiled in their skins, poached or steamed eggs. Greens of any kind; three or four dates, or two figs or bunch of grapes in season, whole wheat bread, honey, stewed rhubarb, apples, fresh pineapples and occasionally cocoa.

Some things a child should not eat are artificially colored and flavored sweets; grease gravy, fried foods of any kind; chili sauce, catsup, pickles and condiments containing strong spices and vinegar; no coffee or tea. Great care should be given to jellies and ice creams made and eaten in public shops.

The KITCHEN CABINET

WOULDST thou fashion for thyself a seemly life? There is no free over what is past and gone. And spite of all thou mayest have left behind. Live each day as if thy life were just begun. —Goethe.

SUGGESTIVE IDEAS AND RECIPES.

In all of our cooking schools today the young people are taught to use utensils always instead of fingers in the cooking. We all like to feel that our food has been prepared in the most scrupulous manner. The spatula or flexible knife has taken away the time-honored custom of scraping out bowls and dishes with the index finger. The fear of spreading disease, and a knowledge of germs has made us all more careful of putting our hands into our cooking. The finger-nails, with the best of common care, cannot be immaculate, and the pores of the skin are large enough to harbor whole congregations of bacteria. This agitation for care of food is not finickiness, but is recognized by all thinking people as a necessity for decent living.

When cooking the fresh, new green peas, they are greatly improved by the addition of a teaspoonful of sugar to the water when boiling them. Sweet corn, sweet potatoes, carrots, turnips, and beets, when not very sweet, are improved by the addition of a teaspoonful of sugar to the water when cooking.

One housekeeper finds that less butter is used on griddle cakes if a tablespoonful of butter is added to the syrup and both heated hot, to serve on the cakes.

Clear tomato soup may be bought in cans, and one may have a few of these on the emergency shelf to make tomato sauce of, adding the seasonings desired, with the thickening of butter and flour, if needed. This is a great saving of time, and a half a can will be a generous supply for a sauce.

Baked Kipper Herring.—Wipe two kippered herrings, lay on a board and rub well with pepper, salt and cloves. Put them into a buttered baking dish, cover with vinegar, add a bay leaf, cover with buttered paper and bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes.

Springtime brings the appetizing horseshoe, which is such an addition to any dinner. Served with steak or fish it makes a sauce most acceptable.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Things Worth Knowing.

To darn worn place in a shirtwaist or any garment made of this material, place a piece of paper, not too stiff, on the wrong side and stitch back and forth with the sewing machine to cover the spot. When done, tear off paper. You will find this an excellent way to patch; will wear twice as long.

Soap for Removing Paint, Grease Spots, Etc.—Four, tablespoons spirit of hartshorn, four tablespoons alcohol, one tablespoon salt. Shake the whole together in a bottle and apply with sponge or brush.

Cure for Corns.—Rub turpentine on corns night and morning.

Save all strings and tapes from the top of underwear. Wind on a spool; they come in handy to replace ribbon in corset cover and in many other ways. Also, when cutting buttons from worn-out garments, string them on a thread, so much easier to find than when you have to pick over all the contents of a button-bag.

The Housewife.

Moths.—If you have some herbs left from last summer, hang them in your clothes closet; they will keep out moths.

Bugs.—Get a bottle of disinfectant from a drug store, and pour a little of it in some water and wash the beds and woodwork with it. If you have many bugs, pour some of the undiluted disinfectant in each corner. This is very good for people that move very much and are not sure the house is clean. It will not hurt the woodwork and makes the room smell nice, and fresh after the first wash.

When you are going to give your floor a new coat of paint this spring, hold a piece of cardboard at the side to prevent paint getting on wall.

The Table.

Potato Salad.—Take six large potatoes boiled with the skins on. When cold, cut in dice; cut large onion in small pieces, put with potatoes, add salt, pepper, then make a dressing as follows:

Salad Dressing.—One heaping spoon flour, one egg, three tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon mustard, one tablespoon butter, half cup vinegar. Stir these together, then add half cup milk. Put on stove in saucepan or double boiler to cook, stirring constantly until thickened and done. Then pour over potatoes and onions. Stir all together and the dressing sets all over the potatoes. Then take two hard-boiled eggs, cut round and put on top of potatoes.

One-Egg Salad Dressing.—One egg, one teaspoon dry mustard or prepared mustard, one tablespoon cornstarch, one-half teaspoon vinegar, two tablespoons granulated sugar, lump of butter size of walnut, two tablespoons olive oil. When cool add sweet milk to this, or cream if you have it.

Nut Bread.—Mix together two cups flour, one cup nuts ground fine, two round teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup sugar, a little salt, one cup sour milk. Lastly add one beaten egg. Bake in loaf. Fine for bread and butter sandwiches.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

A SENSE OF PERSPECTIVE.

THERE are a great many people in this world who never seem to have more than one idea or one feeling at a time.

I once knew a young girl who was so devoted to her mother that she was held up as an example to all the other girls in the town; but when she fell in love and married as girls will do, she seemed to transfer all her devotion to her husband. The little mother was left out in the cold and was given only the barest crumbs of time and affection left over from the feast.

This phase lasted for two years. Then the baby came and immediately all the devotion was transferred to him. She became as indifferent toward her husband as she had been toward her mother. Even when a competent nurse had been secured, she was unwilling to go out with her husband, when he talked to her of his interests, which she had once delighted in sharing, she listened with vacant eyes, she was wondering if she had sterilized the bottles properly, or if she had not better put another blanket on the baby.

Not less to say, while her husband had condoned the indifference and neglect with which his wife treated her mother, he was astonished and indignant at this second change.

Now the world is a big place, and our lives are complex things, and the normal human being ought to have room for a great many interests and affections at once. To concentrate on a single interest and affection is narrow and short-sighted. Unless that woman learns to take an interest in something besides her child she is storing up misery for herself and her family.

Besides the people who can have but one affection at a time, there are those who are capable of only one idea. In this class are the enthusiasts who believe that some single change is our way of living would make us all perfectly well. One is absolutely sure that we would all live to be a hundred if we would only chew each mouthful of food forty or fifty times. Another is just as positive that the only thing necessary for perfect health is to sleep out doors. Still another goes about proving to his own satisfaction that all human ills are caused by eating light-colored clothes.

And then there are the reformers who think the social ill health can be cured by one or two laws. If we could only have the minimum wage or the single tax, they tell us, the millennium would come at once.

If you hold a penny close enough to your eye you can shut out the sun, but that does not mean that the penny is bigger than the sun. If you hold some one else's affection very close to your heart you can shut out the world of other ideas and affections, but that does not mean that the one idea or affection, however good, is more important than all the rest together.

A sense of perspective is a thing a great many people seem to need.

Every Day Talks For Every Day People...

I wonder if we collectively, as a city realize what a splendid place Janesville is, for a home? For a place to live, to raise and educate our children in?

Also I wonder if we, individually, do as much for the city as a good citizen should?

The dictionary says that a "Citizen" is an inhabitant of a city, consequently this applies to us all—men and women, boys and girls.

Candidly now, how do you do as much for our city as a good citizen should? And if not? Why not?

What are the duties of a citizen? They are, one might say, many and varied.

However they are not so arduous as to prevent the average person from putting them into practice.

A man is a good citizen when—voluntarily—he does his duty.

His duty to his God, his country, his family, better, cleaner city, all of these things, which he makes of himself that most desirable of all things, a good man's helpmate, his partner and the keeper of his heart and his home.

And our boys and girls are citizens when in every way possible they put into practice the teaching that they receive at home—at church and at school.

The Booster club that started out so very favorably should be the personal project of every citizen of Janesville. We, as one, for in union lies strength, should work together for a bigger, better, cleaner city. All of us, eager, willing and sincere in our efforts to push our census rating up to the 25,000 mark.

Put your hammer in the locker. And your sounding board in use. Just you boost—quit being a knocker. Any fool can criticize.

"John!" she exclaimed. "I really believe there's something the matter with the baby."

There was a strange light in the Dunkhammer nursery. Outside, the little sparrows twittered, and once in a while a big one did.

"I believe you're right," he replied absently. "I thought I noticed something, but I was so busy wondering how Noah Webster ever thought of the plot for that big book that I forgot all about it."

The light grew brighter, and suddenly she uttered a little scream.

"Oh, I know, John!" she cried. "You could never guess!"

"No," he said.

They laughed at their own denseness as they ran downstairs for the patent extinguisher.

LIFE'S STRUGGLE WITH ILLNESS

Mrs. Stewart Tells How She Suffered from 16 to 45 years old—How Finally Cured.

Euphemia, Ohio.—"Because of total ignorance of how to care for myself when verging into womanhood, and from taking cold when going to school, I suffered from a displacement, and each month I had severe pains and nausea which always meant a lay-off from work for two to four days from the time I was 16 years old."

"I went to Kansas to live with my sister and while there a doctor told me of the Pinkham remedies but I did not use them then as my faith in patent medicines was limited. After my sister died I came home to Ohio to live and that has been my home for the last 18 years."

"The Change of Life came when I was 47 years old and about this time I saw a physical condition plainly described in one of your advertisements. Then I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot tell you or any one the relief it gave me in the first three months. I put me right where I need not lay off every month and during the last 18 years I have not paid out two dollars to a doctor, and have been blest with excellent health for a woman of my age and I can thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it."

"Since the Change of Life, however, I have been a maternity nurse and being whole, self-supporting, I cannot over-estimate the value of good health. I have now earned a comfortable little home just by sewing and nursing since I was 52 years old. I have recommended the Compound to many with good results, as it is excellent to take before and after childbirth."

THE PURCHASE PRICE; OR THE CAUSE OF COMPROMISE

By EMERSON HOUGH

Copyright, 1910, by Emerson Hough

"My child, you will be lost. Forget these matters. Come back with us to our own country. You are young; you are beautiful. You are a woman. You did not love old St. Auban, who took you from your American mother. You did not love him, but will love some other—some young, strong man. Many have sought your hand, my dear."

"See," she interrupted, gently tapping his arm with her fan. "We must not be too much apart. Let us return."

CHAPTER XIV.

In the Name of Altruism.

As they turned back toward the heart of the line, Josephine gave a half exclamation. Two figures were approaching, each of which seemed to her familiar. An instant later she had recognized the young northern officer, Carlisle, whom she had met under such singular conditions. With him stalked the tall young German, Kammerer. Their eyes lighted suddenly as they fell upon her, and both advanced eagerly. There was new dignity in her carriage now, but she greeted them warmly.

"When we may, I shall hope to compare notes with you," she smiled. "You are still on parole to me."

"But you, madam, you seem differently situated here. I am very glad to find it so," Carlisle was eager, flushed, frankly admiring.

"Yes, I scarce know to which side the sea I belong. You know, I am half American, though my people lived abroad in diplomatic work. By President Taylor I was chosen as one of the members of the Hungarian commission sent over by America to look into the cause of Hungary. In return, last year I had the honor of being asked to come to this country as one of the commission dispatched to America in the interest of Hungary. I came over a certain time in advance, for reasons of my own. Meantime, I have had, it seems—well, call them adventures! I am not eager they should be known here. But if you like, you may call on me at my hotel—tomorrow."

Both recognized a slight additional trace of hauteur in the deportment of the woman whom they now accosted. She herself saw a sort of hesitation on the part of Carlisle.

"I can't let you make any mistake about me," he began presently. "I am no longer an officer of the army. I have been court-martialed—for my conduct there—you know—that fight at St. Genevieve. My abolitionist tendencies have always made me persona non grata in my own mess. I've been sentenced. My parole is ended, for the law has acted on my conduct. Rather than go back many steps in rank, I have thrown up my commission. This morning I resigned. I am wearing my uniform, I don't doubt, for the last time."

"And that, although you fought in the cause of freedom! Although you have fought honorably in an earlier war! Is it not horrible?"

"I could not do otherwise," said he simply. "I have no regrets."

"But don't you see?" she turned upon him suddenly—"it only leaves you all the more free! Will it not give you and your friend, Lieutenant Kammerer here, precisely the opportunity you've wished?"

"I do not follow you."

"My dear countess," ventured the German, "I'll go anywhere under your orders."

She turned from them. "Come to my hotel, will you not, tomorrow? I may have something to say to you."

In her apartments at the hotel the following morning Josephine St. Auban looked over the journals of the day. There were many columns of description of the only social event of the previous day thought worth extended mention. The visitors from Hungary were lauded to the skies. Joined to this, there was considerable mention of the reappearance in Washington society of the beautiful countess, Josephine St. Auban. Without any reference to earlier stories not unknown to them, and bolder as to Austria than those who then dwelt in the White House, the newspapers now openly and unanswerably welcomed this distinguished stranger to the heart of Washington. Unknowingly, they threw around her also protection, secrecy. As she read, the Countess St. Auban smiled. She knew that now there would be no second secret trial. The government would not dare.

What interested her more was the story, at that time made current, of an unsuccessful attempt which had been made by a southern slave owner to reclaim his property in a northern state. There had been bloodshed. Naturally, great excitement prevailed among the triumphal blacks; and this, so said numerous dispatches, was fostered and encouraged by comment of all the northern abolitionist press.

She turned to other papers of private nature in her desk. In a half hour more she had gone over the last remittance reports of the agents of her estates in Europe. She smiled, nodded, as she tapped a pencil over the very handsome totals. In ten minutes more she was ready and awaiting the call of Carlisle and Kammerer in her reception room. In her mind was a plan already formulated.

"Are you still for the cause of freedom, and can you keep a secret or aid in one?" she broke in suddenly, turning toward Carlisle. Looking at him at first for a time inscrutably, as though half in amusement or in recollection, she now regarded him carefully for an instant, apparently weighing his makeup, estimating his sincerity, mentally investigating his character, looking at the flame of his hair, the fanatic fire of his deep-set eyes.

"I have sometimes done so," he smiled. "Is there anything in which I can be of service?"

"Time is short," was her answer. "Let us get at once to the point. I am planning to go into the work long carried on by that weak-minded colonization society, but on certain lines of my own. It is my belief that we should deport the blacks from this country. Very well; I am willing to devote certain moneys and certain energies to that purpose. Granted I found it advisable and could obtain proper support, I might not return to Hungary for a time."

"Kammerer" broke in Carlisle suddenly. "Listen! Do you hear? It's what we've said. It is precisely what you yourself have always said."

"That is it—that is it!" exclaimed the young German. "This colonization—removal of them from this country to another, where they shall be by themselves. That only is wise, yes. Elsewise must great war come—else must this Union be lost! Ah, madam! ah, madam! How great your heart, your mind! I kiss your hand."

"Listen!" she interrupted. "There are about three and one-third millions of them now. Say they are worth, old and young, large and little, $1,000 a head—monstrous thing, to put a price upon a human head, but suppose it is. It would amount to but a few billions of dollars. What would a war-cost between these two sections? Perhaps $1,000,000 a day. How much cheaper could these slaves be purchased and deported from these shores? Their owners regard them as property. The laws protect that belief. The constitution establishes the laws. There is no peaceful way to end the turmoil, save by the purchase of these people. That is a solution. It will prevent a war. Let them be sent away to a place where they belong, rather than here."

"My dear countess," said Carlisle. "You are, as usual, brilliant. But as usual, you are visionary and impractical. Buy them? To do this would require the credit of a nation. It would be subversive of all peace and all industry."

"All it needs is money and management. A start and the country will follow. Mr. Fillmore himself was about to recommend it in his last message. Let me furnish the money and do you attend to the complications!"

Carlisle rubbed his chin thoughtfully. "It's beautiful; it may be wise but it's impossible. It would take a king's credit."

"At least we might begin with such funds as are already at hand," smiled the Countess St. Auban. "It might be difficult? I suppose the building of the pyramids was difficult. Yet they were begun. Yet they are finished. Yet they stand complete today."

"It is hardly for me to advise in a case so grave as that," said Carlisle. "I should not undertake it. Have you read the Want Ads."

really considered?"

"I have often followed over the same old course of reasoning, south against north," she said, smiling at him. "Come, now, a revolutionist and two abolitionists should do much. You still can fight, though they have taken away your sword."

Carlisle rose and strode about the room, his face frowning, his slender figure erect, martial even in its civilian dress. Presently he turned. "But it is noble of you, magnificent, to think of doing what a government hesitates to do!—And a woman?"

"Could it be done?" she demanded. "It would require much money. But what a noble solution it would be!"

"Precisely. I rejoice to see that your mind is so singularly clear although your heart is so kind."

"Thank you, my dear captain. This plan of mine to have any success must be carried out on lines broad minded and fair."

"But how adjust pocket interests on both sides? You'll see. You'll be left alone. It is easier to make a speech for liberty than it is to put the price of one slave in the hat passed for liberty. New England, all the north, will hold mass meetings, will pass resolutions commending resistance to the law—like this incident of which there's news this morning. You'll see the blacks commended for that. But you won't see much money raised to keep other blacks from being followed by their owners."

"Then leave it for those who see duty in more concrete form. Leave the cost to me. My only answer is—Lily. And again and again her only answer to them both was—Lily! She told them her story, produced the girl herself and made her confirm it, offered her as concrete example to be presented in a platform campaign which might not end in talk alone—pleaded, argued, and won."

"Madam, I, too, kiss your hands," said Carlisle at last—and did so.

An hour after that she had laid out a campaign for her two agents and had arranged for the expenditure of an initial $100,000.

It was dusk. Heavy shadows lay over the trees which lined the curving walks leading across a little park to the stately white house beyond. From that direction now appeared several gentlemen, advancing in scattering groups. They might almost have been made up of conspirators, so intent they seemed, so apprehensive lest even their thoughts might be read. Two of them drew apart, one of these a slender, boy man, the other a tall and dark man. The latter spoke almost moodily.

"I doubt your ability, my dear sir, to influence so shrewd a man in any such way as you suggest. Besides, he is not of our party."

"That's all the better. A man of our party might, could, would and should keep his mouth shut about such a deplorable matter, but outside our party any who begins it has got to keep his mouth shut."

"There is no other way," he added, smiling. "It must be done. The Countess St. Auban is here again. This band of gypsy heathens from Hungary is also here. The country is wild over Kossuth. We'll have to accept this invitation to invite him. But Austria remains bitter against the countess. What we must do is to have her go back home with these commissioners from Hungary. There's ugly talk about the way she's been used. That fellow Carlisle—good riddance of him from the army—even confessed he engaged in a game of cards. If she likes she can ruin us; because Carlisle can't be kept silent now—he's out of the army. And he's crazy over her anyhow."

"So? I do not blame him."

"Yes. Therefore since all of us have lacked wisdom in our own camp we'd even do well to take wisdom where we can find it."

They parted, the last speaker presently to hail the nearest carriage. The driver a few moments later drew up at the front of a spacious and dignified brick building, whose reserved look might have pronounced it a private hotel or a club for gentlemen. The visitor seemed known, the door swinging open for him.

"Louis," said he to the attendant, "is Mr. — in?" He mentioned a name which was well known in Washington.

"I think you will find him in the reading room, sir," was the answer.

The inquirer passed to the right, entering a wide room with tables, books, heavy chairs, discreetly shaded lamps. At one table drawn close to the light and poring over a printed page sat a gentleman whose personality was not without distinction. The gray hair brushed back from a heightening forehead might have proclaimed him even beyond middle age, and his stature, of about medium height, acknowledged easy living in his generous habit. He rose, and bowed formally before they advanced to take each other by the hand. They were acquaintances, if not intimate friends.

DINNER STORIES

A dentist was filling a lady patient's back teeth. When he had finished with the first tooth he handed the lady a hand mirror that she might see the result for herself. Then he went on with his task, repeating this performance with the mirror after each tooth was filled. Finally, when the job was completed and she had handed back the mirror with thanks, he said:

"Well, madam, how do they look?"

"How do what look?" she returned. "The teeth I just filled?"

"Oh, I forgot about the teeth," she exclaimed, frowning for the hand glass.

"What did you look at each time I gave you the mirror?"

"My hair."

A troupe of wandering musicians were playing before a Swiss hotel. At the end of the performance one of the members left the group, approached the leader of the band and pulled out a little paper which he emptied into his left hand while the eyes of the leader followed every movement.

He then took a plate in his right hand, passed it around, and a large sum was collected, every one, while wondering what he held in his left hand.

"Why, it's very simple," said the leader when questioned. "We are all subject to temptation, and to be sure of the fidelity of our collector he has to hold five fleas in his left hand, and we count these when he returns, to make sure of the money."

C. F. Lester, 1017 Wheeler St., Janesville, Wis., says: "For several months I was in poor health and my system seemed to be filled with uric acid. My back ached intensely and I had but little strength or energy. I decided to try a good kidney medicine and as I had often heard of Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of, I got a supply at the People's Drug Co. It did not take this remedy long to bring me entire relief. At that time I publicly told of my experience and during the years that have since passed, I have not changed my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. Whenever I use this remedy, it does good work."

"Homes of Character" by John Henry Newson

Mr. Newson will give any information concerning these homes which readers of The Gazette may require. Be sure and give the number of the house concerning which you make an inquiry, and, while it is not compulsory, the inclosure of a stamped self-addressed envelope is a business courtesy. Address your inquiries to John Henry Newson, care of "Homes of Character Department," The Gazette.

HOME NO. 139—SIX OR SEVEN ROOMS, AS DESIRED

The size of this attractive home is 24x28 feet and has been built as shown in the photograph for $2800, and under no circumstances should the cost exceed $3500. Readers should bear in mind that there is a difference in labor costs as well as material costs in different localities and that the kind of material specified also enters into the cost of the home.

In every one of these designs, no matter what the type or style may be, you will find character, and every "Home of Character" is architecturally correct. It will never go out of style or become old-fashioned, so in Home No. 139 you have a plan which is most modern and artistic, with an opportunity for various color schemes with which to produce pleasing effects.

The exterior is made more than ordinarily attractive through the latticed columns supporting the pergola-covered porch, while a novel treatment of the end of the living room is obtained by arranging the fireplace beside the stairs and placing the seat or coat closet as you may prefer at the other end of the mantel. The buffet may either be built in at the end of the dining room or a buffet placed where designated with casement windows over it.

Note the convenience of a well-arranged kitchen and the accessibility of the main stairway from the rear.

Two plans are given for the second floor, with either three or four rooms, as desired; no changes being required in the exterior of building on either plan.

The attic is well lighted. There is a grade entrance to the basement which extends under the entire house.
